LEAVITT MAKES THREATS

Former Husband Says He Will Take
Legal Means to Stop Wedding
Unless Custody of Children
Is Given Him.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 2.—The marriage of William Leavitt, the artist from whom William Jennings Bryan's daughter secured a divorce, that he would get possession of the children if he had to take legal steps to prevent the marriage, has caused a furor. His statement is based on the assumption that the Nebraska law prevents a divorced woman from marrying inside of two years.

Lincoln, Neb., May 2.—Preparations are being rushed at Fairview, the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, for the wedding which will unite their oldest daughter, Ruth Bryan Leavitt, to Reginald Owen, of the British Royal Engineers, tomorrow, May 3. It is their intention to leave Lincoln a few hours after their marriage for New York, and after a short sojourn they will embark for England. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bryan will accompany their daughter and her husband across the Atlantic, as Mr. Bryan is to attend at a delegate of the board of the Presbyterian

Evansville the Scene of Strange Tale of Missing Funds by Mystery Strangers.

Evansville, Ind., May 2.—Two thousand dollars, a mysterious black bag and two strangers later identified as Mike Rone and son of Arena Mischak, played principal parts in a drama enacted here last night. The two men arrived at the Commercial Hotel with their black bag during the evening and their actions aroused the suspicions of Landford Meggott, when closing time came they were ejected and disappeared. Chief of Police Broughton, was notified of their suspicious actions and began a search for them. In Mr. Myers' yard a hat worn by one of them was but otherwise no traces were discovered. At quarter of six this morning the two men appeared from somewhere and asked Broughton's aid in locating their lost black bag. They gave their names as Mike Rone and son of Arena and said that they had left home a week ago with two thousand dollars in cash in the bag. When turned out of the Commercial Hotel last they believed some one was going to rob them so they hid the bag by burying it in a back yard expecting to find it this morning. They however had become confused and had lost the location. Search, however, by daylight aided them and they dug the bag up with the precious money all right in George Pullen's

DID ROOSEVELT WRITE LETTER TO PRESIDENT TAFT?

Washington Paper Publishes Story of Supposed Contents of the Communication.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Theodore Roosevelt, according to a local paper, has written letters to President Taft endorsing the present administration. The letters also show that he will not be a presidential candidate in 1912 nor for any other office in the meantime. It is said he wants William J. Loeb, Jr., to be governor of New York.

Deny Story.
It was impossible to find in Washington today a single person who would admit having received from former President Roosevelt any communication on the subject of politics or of his own plans for the future. President Taft, at Pittsburgh, and Mr. Loeb, at New York, both denied receiving any such letters.

Many well known theatrical stars are also helping to make the testimonial the biggest thing of its kind that has ever taken place in New York. The proceeds of the benefit are to be placed in trust to provide a weekly allowance for Young Corbett.

BIG FARMERS' UNION MEET

Which Opens At St. Louis Tomorrow—Ten Million Tillers of Soil Will Be Represented.

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—The eyes of politicians throughout the country will turn this week toward St. Louis, where representatives of 10,000,000 farmers are to meet in convention to discuss "Needed State and national legislation and to establish bureaus at different capitals to see that the demands of the farmer are heard and to devise means of having the farm more attractive so that proposed solution of the economic problem of today—"back to the farm"—may be made possible.

The gathering, which will begin its sessions tomorrow, is to be held under the joint auspices of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America, which comprises twenty-nine compact state organizations with an aggregate membership of 3,500,000, and the American Society of Equity, with a membership of 2,500,000. Other farmers' organizations with memberships amounting to more than 3,000,000 have been invited to participate in the deliberations.

If for no other reason, the convention would attract wide attention of the large number of eminent speakers who are to be heard. This list is headed by President Taft, who has accepted an invitation to address the convention Wednesday. Other men of national prominence who will be heard are Senators Gore and Owen of Oklahoma, Governor Hodge of Missouri, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson Col. John Temple Graves of New York, Thomas Watson of Georgia, and Congressman Cantrell. The Commissioners of agriculture of a number of the Southern and Western States will also be included among the speakers.

But the real importance of the convention is believed to lie in the fact that it will mark the debut of the American farmer as a politician. President Taft of the Farmers' Union emphatically denies that his organization has any intention of joining in the formation of a new political party. Notwithstanding this denial it is recognized by all that the work of organizing the farmers especially in the South and West, has made such strides in the last few years that the Farmers Union is certain to be forced to the front politically, and that even if the union does not carry the "farmers" or elections and secure the offices it will nevertheless be able to compel the politicians and officials to adopt its views on agricultural and economic questions.

History does not record a more phenomenal growth than that of the Farmers' Union. The organization was first formed in Texas in the early '90s and started its career with a membership of ten persons. Today it covers all of the States of the South, the Southwest and a large section of the West and has millions of signed members. As an organization it has so far managed to steer clear of political entanglements. The leaders still insist that politics be barred, but their statements are not reassuring to the leaders of the old political parties, who realize that the organization is similar in many respects to the old Farmers Alliance, which swept Kansas and Nebraska out of the republican column, and which was the forerunner of the Populist party. The politicians remember how the leaders of the Farmers' Alliance twenty years ago pledged the people that there would be no politics in the organization. Nor have they forgotten how Jerry Simpson, Senator Peffer and others took advantage of the movement.

If the Farmers' Union goes into politics and wins many local observers believe such will be the case—the country is likely to see far more radical legislation in the line of Socialism than ever before, for the state credit of state money will be pledged to finance the cotton and other crops, to erect warehouses for their storage, and to control, if not operate, the mills and elevators. Legislation will be asked not only of the senate but of Congress also to aid the farmers. The first of the laws that will be asked for will be a statute closing the cotton exchanges and boards of trade and making it a felony to speculate in cotton, wheat and similar products of the soil.

In addition to legislation abolishing speculation in farm products, the organization is working for the enactment of federal laws for the establishment of a parcel post and postal savings banks, stringent legislation against the lines of restricting agricultural projects. The union has also declared itself in opposition to the proposed establishment of a central bank.

RUTH BRYAN LEAVITT WITH CHILDREN, AND REGINALD OWEN, WHOM SHE IS TO WED.

church in the United States the church's missionary conference at Edinburgh early in June.

The marriage will be the culmination of a romance of short duration and one that has been conducted very quietly. In March, 1909, Mrs. Leavitt obtained a divorce from her first husband, William Homer Leavitt, almost twice her age, whom she married seven years ago, when she was just 18 years old. For two years before the divorce was granted they lived apart, he pursuing his artistic career in Paris and she residing with her parents at Fairview, with her two children, Ruth and Bryan Leavitt, now six and four and a half years old, respectively. By the decree of the divorce the children were given wholly to the custody of the mother. For the past three months she has been living in Germany with them.

Reginald Owen belongs to a family of Welsh descent, that for several generations has been prominent in the affairs of the Church of England. His paternal grandfather and great-grandfather, both of whom were named John Owen, were dissenters of the church and were consequently identified with its history in Ceylon.

In that colony Reginald Owen, now 24 years old, was born and lived until he was sent to England by his father, also named John Owen, to be educated. He won distinction a few years ago while he had charge of important telegraph work for his government in Ireland. He is a strapping fellow, over six feet tall, of athletic figure and soldierly bearing.

The bulk of his family estate is in Ceylon. His father, a widower, now resides in London, where he is on a dozen or more boards of English companies chartered to do business in Great Britain's eastern possessions.

After a brief stay in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Owen will return to the husband's station in the West Indies.

PERSONAL TOUCH OF GREAT VALUE

INFLUENCE A FACTOR IN WORK OF CHRISTIANITY.

CALLING OF THE APOSTLES

Was the Story Upon Which Rev. Hazen Preached Sunday Evening Sermon at Baptist Church.

The value of personal influence in modern business methods and particularly in Christian work was described by the Rev. J. C. Hazen in his evening sermon Sunday. The subject chosen was "In Touch With Jesus," the text being the story of the calling of the first of the Apostles, as told in the first chapter of the Gospel of John, the thirty-fifth to the fifty-fifth verses.

"It was about four o'clock one afternoon, the fourth hour according to the reckoning of time in those days, that three men were standing alongside a road near a stream in Galilee,—the ardon. One, the leader of the three, was a man you might picture to yourself as being of a striking appearance, a man tall and dark of complexion, with black piercing eyes. One of the group standing with him was of the opposite make-up. He was probably fairer and less of stature. He was not the leader of the three. The other man was somewhat like the second. And as they stood there another man came that way, whom John, the leader of the three pointed out and said to the others, 'Behold the Lamb of God.' And the other two hearing him speak turned and followed Jesus. Jesus asked them whom they sought and they replied with the question, 'Master, where dwellest thou?' They went home with Jesus and stayed with him that night.

"I suppose that some of us would count it a great privilege to be the guest of Jesus, but we have the privilege of being His guest and inviting him to be our guest, to come into our homes and direct our lives. As these three left Jesus some of his influence seemed to go with them and they brought others to Jesus and Jesus spoke to them and they too became His disciples. What a privilege for them to hear Jesus' voice, you say. And yet that privilege can be granted to anyone and that same invitation can be extended to anyone. 'What a privilege it was to have looked into Jesus' face. So much can be expressed in a look. You have perhaps walked down the street and seen two persons pass each other, whom you have instinctively known to be enemies. What expressions came from their faces, and what ugly feelings are expressed. Two others meet and pass and yet you can tell as they pass by they are friends and would do anything for each other. You would give lots for the privilege of looking into the face of someone dear to your life. We have the privilege of looking to Jesus and seeing Him but too often we are his different and pass by Him without looking.

"As these disciples had Jesus pointed out to them they looked and there seemed to be something about him that moved John and Andrew until they stood in the presence of Jesus and heard his voice. It isn't sufficient that you can look into the face of a dear one, but something tells you that you want to hear their voice. The voice carries with it a message. They became messengers for Jesus. The highest respect and service that can be shown to the Master is to become His messenger and bring His voice to others. 'In the presence of Jesus the disciples felt entirely at ease. You know tonight that in your presence you can be as much at ease as in the presence of Jesus. Christ. If you love Him as the disciples did, going over and being with Jesus will bring about a marvellous change in you. You remember the man, small of stature, who could not see above the crowd and who climbed the tree to look on Jesus. Zacchaeus, the man, was a man of wealth, a man of influence and he came down a changed man. If you look in the same way it may change your life, but you know it if it does it will be for your own good. If you come tonight and look into the face of Jesus and come to know Him as a Saviour, it is a high mark of devotion to go out and get your friends to come to Him. 'It is a real opportunity. See what personal touch does in the business world. How much business do you suppose would be done by the business and commercial houses tomorrow if instead of sending out their men to personally meet their customers, they would wait a letter to each. It is the personal touch that he secures the orders. In the same way it is the personal touch that brings souls to Christ. That is why Christ wants you to say to everyone you meet, 'I've seen Jesus and I want you to come and meet Him and know Him too.'"

Their One Claim to Distinction. — Some people never get a chance to boast, except by saying when a new play comes to town that they saw it with the original company in New York.

Nurseries and Influences. — Countries and families are but nurseries and influences. A man is a father, a brother, a German, a Roman, an American; but beneath all these relations, he is a man. The end of his human destiny is not to be the best German, or the best Roman, or the best father, but the best man he can be.—George William Curtis.

SPEAKER CANNON DEFENDS PRESENT HOUSE RULES

Declares There is Danger if Minority Is Permitted to Dictate Legislation.

Boston, May 2.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon and former Gov. Frank B. Black of New York addressed the Midwestern club on the occasion of a celebration of the eighty-eighth anniversary of the birth of General Grant. Speaker Cannon paid his respects to the conditions in the house, declaring with great emphasis:

"When we have to change the rules of the house to permit the minority to dictate legislation in behalf of special interests," he said, "we will be confronted with the necessity of changing our constitution, and all our conceptions of a people's government, where the majority shall legislate and accept responsibility for the legislation."

"Thomas D. Reed once said," the speaker declared, "that 'the noise made by a small but loud minority in the wrong is too often mistaken for the voice of the people and the voice of God.' That remark applies to the discussion of the rules."

The speaker stated that the rules were the development of 120 years, that they were substantially as they had been for a generation; that a campaign against the rules 20 years ago brought out all the denunciations made within the last two years, and that on the former occasion it was the "loud minority" trying to dictate legislation. In discussing the criticism of General Grant during his administration as president, Speaker Cannon found a parallel in the attacks on the present administration and inferred that this administration would overcome all attacks as triumphantly as did Grant.

SEVERE BLOW TO BUCKETSHOP.

Government Officers Arrest Two Brokers and Cut Off Quotations.

New York, May 2.—Two arrests, declared by the government officials to be the most important in the fight of Attorney General Wickersham against the bucketshops of the United States—which already had netted twenty-nine defendants—were made. In one raid, Frank Maler, of the brokerage firm of Morrison & Maler, 44 Broad street, was taken by government detectives. In the other, government detectives and Jersey City policemen captured Joseph Becker in an office alleging to belong to "T. Mardian," in the Lincoln Trust building, in Jersey City.

These two arrests, according to the detectives and police, effectually shut off all the sources of the bucketshops throughout the country from obtaining quotations of the New York stock exchange.

IT WAS HIS FAULT

"I shall never set foot in Blankington's store again," declared Mrs. Wedderburn in such a tone of fierce determination that Wedderburn looked up from his evening paper in surprise.

"I was actually insulted there, Harry," she went on. "I had intended to ask you to start an account at Blankington's, but after the treatment I received there to-day I shall certainly not patronize that firm any more."

"I don't believe we need any more charge accounts," said Wedderburn, easily. "But I'm surprised that you should have met with any discourtesy at Blankington's. What happened, anyway?"

"Well, when I went down town this morning I thought I'd just take a five-dollar bill with me. I knew that would be plenty for the few little purchases I intended making and for Beulah Russell's and my luncheon. I telephoned Beulah to meet me at Blankington's and lunch with me and, do you know, she simply insisted on paying the bill. She said it was her turn, and all that sort of things, so, of course, I had to let her pay."

"I was kind of glad afterward, for I saw a splendid sale of lingerie blouses for only two dollars apiece, and it was nice to know I had plenty of money in my pocket to buy one and the other things I wanted, too."

"I selected a perfect beauty and I knew you'd be awfully pleased with it, because it buttoned in front, Harry. I told the saleswoman to send it and then we looked around at all the other wools and I didn't see any I liked better than mine, and, after quite awhile, I went to the girl who had waited on me and asked her if my change hadn't come yet."

"Change!" she repeated. "There isn't any change. You gave me the right amount—a two-dollar bill."

"I couldn't have done that," I said, "for I didn't have a two-dollar bill with me. I had just one five-dollar bill."

"She called the manager of the department and we both told him of the error. I was careful not to say anything critical about the saleswoman's carelessness, for I know everybody is liable to make mistakes. The manager went down to the cashier and, after I had waited until I was getting tired, he came back and said there had been no five-dollar bill paid into that department for some time before I had bought my waist."

"Then you doubt my word?" I said. "No, madam," he replied, "but it is possible that you paid a two-dollar bill without noticing it."

"How could I, I asked, 'when I had only a five-dollar bill with me?'"

"Are you quite sure that you had no two-dollar bill?" he returned.

"Don't you think, Harry, it was impertinent of him to question me in that way? Beulah was incensed at his rudeness, I can tell you."

"I certainly am positive," I replied, "for I remember thinking this morning that I'd take a five-dollar bill for my day's expenses, and as I had but one bill in my purse, that must have been it, for I haven't even seen a two-dollar bill for a long time. And, I went on, very firmly, 'I wish you would refund my three dollars at once.'"

"That's just what we can't do, madam," he declared, "but if our cash balance tonight should show that we owe you three dollars we'll send it to you tomorrow."

"Tomorrow!" I repeated, scornfully. "In the meantime I am left without a cent of money in my purse and am practically accused of trying to cheat Blankington's out of three dollars, when the shoe is really on the other foot."

"Then I demanded back the money I had spent on the blouse, for I know after all that fuss I should never take any pleasure in it. As I told you at first, Harry, I've decided never to go into that store again."

"Have you looked for the five-dollar bill since you came home?" Wedderburn asked, stretching an arm toward his wife's desk.

"No; why should I, when I know I took it with me this morning?"

Wedderburn did not argue the question, but quietly pulled out the little drawer of the desk. There lay, a crisp, green bill.

"Why, I couldn't have taken it out, after all," exclaimed Mrs. Wedderburn. "But where did I ever get that two-dollar bill? I can't understand it at all."

"This morning I took a look into your purse, my dear, and, as it was empty, I put in the two-dollar bill, which was all I happened to have with me."

"Oh, Harry, why didn't you tell me? Just see all the trouble you have made for me! And that was such a beautiful blouse for the money at Blankington's! And now I shall be ashamed to go there and buy it again!"

An Ancient Metal. —The use of iron has been traced back to the ninth century B. C., at which period the Egyptians made weapons from meteorites.

Metal shavings and concrete constitute a new paving material.

Accounting for It. —Metals show fatigue, says a scientist. That must account for so many iron constitutions breaking down.—Washington Post.

Must Furnish Inducements. —A New York scientist who has made a study of longevity is responsible for the startling statement that man ought to live forever. At present there are not enough inducements to make everlasting life on earth desirable. The scientist must find a way of guaranteeing a living as well as life.

Old Ocean, Scuttling. —The island of Aldabra, to the north-west of Madagascar, is becoming smaller through the action of the man-groves that grow along the foot of the cliffs. They eat their way into the rock in all directions, and into the gaps thus formed the waves force their way. In time they will probably reduce the island to pieces.

NEWELL IS SCORED;

BALLINGER SAYS RECLAMATION
HEAD IS NOT FIT FOR POSITION.

DECLARES TAFT NOT MISLED

Cabinet Officer Swears He Did Not Order Restoration of Water Sites Withdrawn by Garfield—Refers to
"Black Tent" Affair.

Washington, May 2.—Secretary Ballinger continued to contradict and deny statements and accusations against him from the witness stand in the Hallinger-Pheasant investigation. He still was under direct examination when the committee adjourned until next Thursday.

Passing from the subject of Alaskan coal lands, Mr. Ballinger launched into a justification of his attitude toward the reclamation service. His most important denial was of the charge made by Director F. H. Newell and Chief Engineer A. P. Davis of the service, that he misrepresented to President Taft that the reclamation service had recommended the restoration of the water power sites withdrawn by Secretary Garfield.

Contradiction is Positive.
The reclamation service officials swore Mr. Ballinger ordered them to recommend the restoration. The secretary swore just as positively that he made no such order, although he felt the hands had been illegally withdrawn and should be restored to entry and had so stated to the reclamation officials.

Mr. Ballinger made no secret of the fact that he would like to see Mr. Newell superseded as head of the reclamation bureau. He told the committee he did not have much confidence in the director's administrative ability, although he denied hostility to the government's reclamation policy. Asked by his lawyer why he didn't "make a change" in the reclamation service, Mr. Ballinger retorted sharply: "Because my hands have been up for months and I haven't been able to get them down."

Refers to "Black Tent" Affair.

The so-called "black tent affair" was brought to Mr. Ballinger's attention. Both Director Newell and Engineer Davis had testified that E. T. Perkins, purchasing agent at Chicago for the service, had received $500 a month for a period of four months from the Harriman interests for delivering lectures, and that other railroads had complained about it. They said the matter was called to Mr. Ballinger's attention and that he sent two men to Chicago to investigate, but that it not only resulted in Perkins' retention but in his being placed at the head of the office.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"It's a lucky thing for me," commented the shampoo lady, as she squeezed my dripping hair over the bowl and prepared to swathe them in the towel, "that so few people seem to take much stock in the proverb about a stitch in time saving nine."

"Why, I've got all of seven heads in my case this winter that'll need maybe two years' treatment before they'll be in really healthy condition. And there isn't one of those heads but I could have put right in two or three months if the folks had come to me when the hair first began to fall out."

A week ago I went to the oculist with a swollen eyelid and a blood-shot eye. He gave me one glance at me and reached for a bottle of medicine on his desk.

"You're the ninth case of pink-eye I've had this week," he remarked as he poked the dropper above me. "These there's an epidemic. How long has your eye been troubling you?"

"Just since last night," I told him. My promptness in attending to my suffering member was due to no special wisdom on my part, but merely to a terrified appreciation of the value of eyes as part of my stock in trade.

"Well, I guess that means not more than two or three days for you. I've promised the others about eight or ten days, but you get off easy because you didn't let it get in a terrible state before you came to me."

And his promise proved correct both in my own case and, as I heard later, in most of the others.

"A stitch in time saves nine." How many doctors, dentists, oculists, hair specialists—members of every profession that has to do with the renovating of poor, abused human bodies—get rich on the average person's refusal to take that as a working motto in the care of their bodies.

If everyone went to the dentist for an inspection once in every three or four months, instead of waiting, as the average person does, until an unbearable toothache fairly drives him to the dentist's door, there wouldn't be business enough, a dentist told me the other day, for more than half the dentists who now thrive and grow fat and set up automobiles on the dental needs of the community.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

"A stitch in time saves nine."

"A fence at the edge of a precipice is better than a hospital at the bottom of it."

Shutty-shut out of every hundred people would say, "Of course," without even stopping to think, if you asked them if they believed those prophecies.

And yet I don't believe nine out of one hundred people really live them when it is a question of the care of their bodies.

Can you say that you belong to that nine?

A MAN'S WORLD OR A WOMAN'S.

By MARY RUSSELL

In a recent play there is a sentence that runs like this: "This is a man's world. Man sets the standard for women."

He knows that she is better than he is and he demands that she be and if she is not she has got to suffer for it.

No matter how bitter the truth of this statement may be, women must agree that it is true—with certain limitations and additions.

Man did set the standard for women, and it was not high, as history proves. Women were playthings, the joy of an idle hour, the toy of the moment.

There came a day in the career of each man, however, when the woman he loved refused to be one of many toys. The demand for faithfulness—the jealousy of other women—is at the base of our present marriage relation.

Does any one think that the old laws that permitted a man to have as many wives as he could support—or as was required to support him—would that condition ever have changed if the women had not protested?

True, the women of ancient days seem to have been made of different material than that which has fashioned the thinking women of today, but when it came to the emotion which we call love they were no capable more than as now. And they were more inclined to fight for the sole empire of their lord's heart than they are today when a woman is too proud to fight for what is not a free gift.

But it was love—love of man for woman, and jealousy—jealousy of woman for man—that caused the first vows to one wife. Some man was not willing to make some woman unhappy by taking another wife, to divide her little kingdom even when the laws sanctioned such action. We find records of the great struggles for undivided hearts back as far as history goes.

Slowly and subtly the influence women have ever exerted has spread until today there are few savage tribes, even, which admit polygamy.

Was this due to a man's world or to a woman's?

Men do make a standard for women to live up to, and she does live up to it, but she, herself, is stronger in upholding those unwritten laws than is man himself.

If women would make demands of men, such as men make of women, we would hear no more of the social evil. The white slave trade would be forgotten for lack of a market. The double standard of morality would be in the eyes of men, as it is of women, a blot on our civilization. Why then do we women, who have so much power, allow men to make moral standards for us and refuse to make moral standards for them?

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A WORKING GIRL WIFE.

Young Mr. Knox, son of the secretary of state, ran away with a young girl who worked for a living and married her.

The couple eloped because the parents of the young man objected to his marrying the girl.

Well—A great fuss was made about the matter. It was not expected the young man would select somebody "below the salt." Some girl of aristocratic breeding from upper Fifth avenue or Newport would have filled the bill.

Meantime Knox Junior has gone to work to support his wife.

Good!

If some such thing did not happen once in awhile in "the upper circles" of our American life we might begin to feel as if a part of our population had lost its red blood.

In all likelihood the Knox family will not need to go very far back in its history to find wives and mothers who worked for a living.

The most of us are now on earth and in the enjoyment of reasonable health because of working fathers and mothers, and we are proud of it!

Mr. Knox, Sr., himself is an able man. No doubt about that. But he got his healthy body and his keen brain from some strong, wide hipped, sensible and hardworking grandmother, a grandmother either on this or the other side of the sea.

And the boy's brain came in a like way, as shown by his strength of purpose and sturdy independence.

And this is true: You will find the mothers or grandmothers of the future presidents and state secretaries and successful business men among the working girls in the kitchens and shops and fields. Quite certainly you will not find them in the congenial society of lap dogs or smoking cigarettes.

Good for young Knox!

To say nothing about his being in love with his girl, an all sufficient reason for marrying her, he may be thankful to her all the days of his life because to get her he had to become a self respecting, self supporting worker, owing no man anything save good will.

And he will get in his working girl wife no doubt just what he wants—a devoted, loyal, loving wife and a good mother of his children.

What more could a man want in a wife?

Biggest Liar of All.

The biggest liar of all is the tramp beggar and petty thief. This Munchausen of the highways lives by lying of a weak, silly, romantic sort and by petty swindling. Charitably can stretch a long way with such petty pretenses, for they often go into pronounced incurable dementia, the worst form of dishonesty. All habitual liars are, of course, in some way or another, moral idiots—except the "saps," who lie for politeness, well knowing that truth makes trouble.

In Praise of Good Humor.

Honest good humor is like the oil and wine of a merry meeting and there is no jovial companionship equal to that where the jokes are rather small and the laughter abundant.—Washington Irving.

WHY OF COURSE.

Convict—Yes. For one thing, the hours here are too long.

THE HEAVENS IN MAY.

By Prof. Eric Doolittle of the University of Pennsylvania.

Halley's Comet will appear in all of its splendor May 18th. Total eclipse of the Moon May twenty-third.

The one object in the heavens which is now the center of interest, is the wonderful comet. As it shines out in the southeast during the past few weeks it has probably attracted the attention of nearly every reader, but during the last days of the month it will increase in brightness to an extraordinary degree. On the evening of May 10 it will be nearly seven thousand times as bright as at the time of its discovery in September.

THE COMET IN THE MORNING.

Between May 1 and May 18 the comet must be looked for in the through the fall, nor would an inhabitant of this world see the comet pass across the face of the sun. The appearance of the comet, as seen from Venus, would, however, be very fine. If the reader will examine both of these bright objects with a small telescope, bearing in mind that Venus is of almost exactly the same size as our own earth, there will be impressed upon him, in the most striking manner, a true understanding of how vast an object the comet really is.

THE PHENOMENA OF MAY 18.

On the night of May 18 the comet will pass directly between the earth at the time of the comet's transit it will be only one-seventh as far away from us as the sun, the individual particles, even if they are no more than ten miles in diameter, will be clearly visible as little black dots moving over the face of the sun. If there are larger masses of solid matter in the comet they will, of course, be still more conspicuous.

As the center of the comet's head moves into the sun's disc on May 18 at 10 hours 50 minutes P. M. (Eastern time), and passes off from it at 11 hours 48 minutes it can, of course, not be seen by observers in Europe or America, since to them the sun will have set at this time. But during these hours the earth will pass through the great tail which extends for many million miles in a direction exactly opposite the sun, and it is possible that some evidence of so conspicuous in the evening sky that it will attract the attention of everyone. In these few days it will move half way across the entire heavens, as shown in Fig. 1, passing a little below Mars, and above the bright star at A. Its head will point toward the ground in the west, and its tail extend upward among the stars. As it moves westward and recedes from the earth it will grow rapidly fainter, and in a few months will be lost to view entirely. But though no longer visible to us we will know that it is still pursuing its long journey into the depths of space destined to return again to excite the admiration and interest of those who shall be taking our places and doing our work in the year 1986.

THE PLANETS.

As stated last month, Mercury may be seen low in the northwest about May 3, for an hour after sunset. It is now in very unusually favorable position for observation.

Venus is the bright morning star seen in the southeast before sunrise; the former moving rapidly eastward through Gemini and the latter very slowly westward in Virgo. Neptune is near the star B (Fig. 1), and on May 22 may be easily located, as it is then exactly 28 minutes south of this star.

THE TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THIS MOON.

A total eclipse of the moon, visible to all observers in the United States, will occur on the evening of May 23. Our satellite will reach the position this passage will be seen by us. It is impossible to predict whether the tail will be visible to us at this time or not. If it is sufficiently bright and the night is very clear we may see the long streamers, resembling the rays of the Aurora, extending up from the ground toward the northeast in the early evening. As the hours of the night go on these should sweep slowly over the heavens in the north, shifting their position toward the west. It may be possible to trace the tail across the entire heavens; on the other hand, it may be visible only as a faint glow, or may even be so faint as to escape detection altogether. It has been recently increasing so rapidly in size and brightness, however, that it is hoped that this latter may not be the case. It is, perhaps, unnecessary to add that the earth will not be in the least affected by this encounter, and also that the sensational statements in some papers as to the influence of the comet on our world are utterly without foundation. The sight of this beautiful object, as it moves along its appointed path, in exact accordance with the predictions of astronomers, should only impress upon each observer anew the wonderful harmony of the laws which govern all the celestial bodies in their courses.

THE COMET IN THE EVENING SKY.

From the evening of May 19 to the end of the month the comet will be shown in Figure 2. At this time the comet and Venus will lie nearly in straight line with the sun, Venus being 62,000,000 miles from the sun and the comet 62,000,000, so that the comet is about 124,000,000 miles from the sun. The tail of the comet is but 2,000,000 miles. The tail of the comet is, however, seen above Venus; the planet will not pass much denser and it is believed to be composed of a great swarm of meteoric particles, mingled with cosmic dust and gases. It is not thought that there is any definite solid nucleus in the head of any considerable size, and nothing is now known as to the size of the individual meteoric masses which compose it. But since reach C, and begin to emerge at 0 hours 58 minutes 24 seconds A. M., and finally emerge and the eclipse end at 2 hours 22 minutes 18 seconds A. M. The appearance of the moon at different times during the eclipse is shown in Fig. 5.

ASKS RESULTS IN STREET CAR CASE

CITY ATTORNEY MAXFIELD
WANTS STATE RAILWAY COM-MISSION TO TAKE ACTION.

COMPLAINT HAS BEEN FILED

Renews Old Complaint Against the Local Street Car Line—May Bring About Some Definite Results.

City Attorney Harry L. Maxfield
this morning filed with the Wisconsin State Railway Commission a formal complaint against the Jansville Street Railway Company asking that the commission take some definite action relative to the matter. It will be remembered that just previous to the sale of the road by the Babson Interests to the present owners, a similar complaint had been filed with the commission but Mr. Maxfield withdrew it in order that the proposition might stand in the way of the proposed sale and promised rehabilitation of the local line. Nothing has been done or actually promised by the company, and this case and it is expected the matter will be given a speedy hearing by the commission.
The complaint filed is as follows:

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM AT BANQUET

Members of Monroe High School Quintet and Faculty of School In-joyed Feast in Turner Hall.
(Special to the Gazette.)

Monroe, Wis., May 2.—A sumptuous banquet was served to the members of the 1910 high school girls' basketball team and the members of the high school faculty at a 6:30 o'clock dinner at Turner hall. Miss Sylvia Karlen, the captain of the team, presided as toastmistress and different ones at the table responded to toasts. High school friends of the team served at the tables and the hall was decorated lavishly. At 8 o'clock about ninety guests in all arrived at the hall to have a social party and dance. Rex G. Booth presided at the piano and a merry time was indulged in by all. This is an annual event and this year's party outlasted all former events of this kind. It was also somewhat in the nature of a farewell, as some of the present team leave the school with the class of 1910.

Lively Runaway.
The delivery horse belonging to the Becker & Sharo grocery, flared in a runaway while being driven down West Russell street. The driver raised an umbrella, frightening the horses, and they made a mad dash down the street, overturning the wagon and scattering a load of groceries promiscuously about the street. The driver and horses were uninjured.

LARGE HOUSES FOR THE D'URBANO BAND

Sunday Afternoon and Evening Concerts Struck the Popular Fancy.

"Two Splendid Concerts."
D'Urbano and his Italian band, with Stan the piccolo player, Di Natale, and other soloists back in the fold and a new singer, favored Jansville with another series of concerts yesterday. Four hundred people attended the afternoon entertainment and the audience last evening nearly filled the house. The programs included D'Urbano's new compositions—the "Knights of the Romance" and "Salute Agli Amici" (Respectful to My Friends) marches, the overture from Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," the overture from Puccini's "Madama Butterfly," the overture from "William Tell," Puccini's "Danza Dellore" from "La Gioconda," a stirring number in the interpretation of which the gifted conductor was at his best, selections from "The Merry Widow" and "The Three Twins" and the Grand Sextette from "L'Arlecchino." Miss Leonora Annino sang Italian and English songs in a very pleasing manner and high compliments were thoroughly enjoyed by those who attended.

The Optimist's Corner

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness
By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A. M., M. D.

Keep your teeth clean and they won't decay! How shall they be kept clean? Of course with a tooth-brush, says some one. Yes, a tooth-brush is a good thing, but one good toothbrush is worth an armful of toothbrushes. The tooth-brush does well in keeping the flat side of the teeth clean. But on those flat surfaces the food does not stick, and so there is little tendency to decay. The mouth is a warm place, nearly a hundred degrees by the thermometer. If we eat meat today for dinner, the little pieces which find their way between our teeth will be exposed to the heat of the mouth, begin to decompose before tomorrow noon. If these particles of food are left between our teeth and allowed to decompose, ought we to be surprised that the teeth and gums should suffer? A tooth-brush will not go between the teeth and remove those bits of food.
On rising from the table use a goose-quill tooth pick thoroughly, and rinse the mouth, so as to remove such particles as the tooth-pick may have left behind.
Before retiring at night use a tooth-brush with a good tooth powder. Do the same thing on rising in the morning. Consult your dentist frequently that your teeth may be kept in good condition.

Child Not to Blame.
"My infant, mamma," said the lady in the bus with dignity, "appropriated and clawed your mitt not from mere wantonness but under the impression that it was a pussy cat."—London Globe.

PLEASED FAIR SIZED AUDIENCE SATURDAY

Harry Williams and F. A. Wade Were Good As the Comical Sailors and Margaret French as Prima Donna.

"That hardy perennial, 'The Isle of Spice,' blossomed again at the Myers theatre Saturday evening and a capable company presented the fun and music in a satisfactory fashion. Harry Williams and F. A. Wade were the comical sailors and the most talented performers in the cast and Stanley Peach was the musical comedy potential. Margaret French pleased with her singing of 'Peggy Brady' and other numbers in the role of 'Feresa,' the king's ward. The ensemble were fairly pleasing and costumes and scenery were not so bad.

In The Churches

WANTED, A VISION.

By Rev. Fred C. Britten,
Pastor of the Baptist Church, Jansville.

Proverbs 29:18—"Where there is no vision the people perish."
One chapter of the prophecy of Isaiah summarizes all others in the Bible for grandeur of conception, majestic simplicity of style, and vivid presence of a divine call to a man to undertake a great mission. The eyes were opened in the temple and he saw the Lord sitting upon a throne high and lifted up and the train filled all that magnificent sanctuary.

There stood the seraphim, the winged messengers of God. Each one had six wings. With two he covered his face, with two his feet and with two he flew. And one cried into another until the reverberations of the chant moved the door posts and as if by magic, the house was filled with smoke. "Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord of Hosts. The whole earth is full of his glory."

The vision had its natural and divinely appointed effect. Isaiah viewing the manifestation of divine purity and holiness became painfully conscious of his own unworthiness and of the utter depravity of his surroundings. "Woe is me," he cried, "For I am a man of unclean lips and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips.
For mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of Hosts. Just in the moment of his soul agony he sees one of the seraphim reaching toward him with a live coal from off the altar, and laying it upon Isaiah's unclean mouth.
"Now," he thought, "this is the end of me. My life is over. My soul is purged."

Scarcely had he become conscious of his cleansing when he hears the voice of the Lord ringing out through the wonderful glory of the temple, "Whom shall I send and who will go for me?"
The transformation is complete. The Divine Overlord has "enveloped and permeated the human individual to its very core. There is not an instant's hesitation; no query as to the character of the work or the difficulty of it or the impossibility of it; no complaining that the people will not receive the message, nor that they will stick to the old party in which they were born, nor quailing because of the knowledge that the people would hear and understand not and see and not perceive or because of the assurance that his message would be rejected "until the cities be wasted without inhabitant and the land be utterly desolate;" no misgivings, no hesitating of the undertow. He cannot withdraw himself from the range and influence of that unbinding glance into true holiness, without altering his moral status.

Nor would he if he could. His whole being is on fire. He yearns to do and to dare. He is prepared for every adversity and any sacrifice, for his eyes have seen and his heart has experienced the glory of the sinless God and the throbs of divine sympathy. "Lord here I am, send me."

He could not help but cry out withhold that consecration of himself. Nor can any man who, from the depths of his own soul's need, experiences a vision of the Holy of Holies.

Consider now my theme:
WANTED, A VISION.

Waterproof Paper.
Japanese waterproof paper is made of fibers of bamboo and encyclops mixed with fibers of the amphi and other shrubs. The fibers are torn apart, dried, cleansed, scraped, hulled in weak dye and washed with water. They are then beaten and mixed with a viscous infusion of certain roots and a solution containing camphor, cinnabar and resin. The sheets formed from this pulp are calendered at various temperatures. The paper is light, washable and very difficult to tear. It is used to imitate leather and India rubber and for a great many other purposes.

World's Largest University.
The University of Calcutta is said to be the largest educational corporation in the world. It examines more than 10,000 students annually.

Neglected Opportunity.
A learned professor lectured the students recently on "Embryonic development and polyembryony in Rinchelini racemosa." As no record-record was made for Umbyby-bybyby Photo-no-nograph company of New York-ork-ork-ork and Pa-pa-pa-ria, however, you will have to deny yourself the pleasure of hearing it reproduced.—Washington Herald.

Town "Made" by Novel.
Works of fiction have exercised a wonderful influence in the popularization of certain localities. A typical example is "Westward Ho!" named after a sleepy village in Devon, England. The success of the novel sent thousands of people flocking to the town, and its prosperity was from that time assured.

Bresee's Monuments

GUARANTEED in every way. The granites are of the best grades of European, eastern and Wisconsin productions. The lettering and art designs are done by experts with pneumatic tools, giving superior work to that done in the old way with hand tools.

There is one way to perpetuate the last resting place of the dear ones we have laid away and that is the placing of a monument on the family lot.

Come in and see what we have when you are down town. We are always glad to advise and assist in making selections.

Turnip Family.
The turnip is supposed to be a native of Asia and Europe. It has been cultivated for centuries. The wild Indian turnip is said to be prominently like to the edible turnip. It is the size of a walnut and first tasted the turnip's tongue feels as though it were pricked by a hundred hot needles, and he looks like expectorating for hours after. It is the country boy's favorite medium for a joke on the visiting town boy.

Georgian's Hard Luck Story.
His horse went dead and his mule went lame and he lost six cows in a poker game; then a hurricane came on a summer's day and blew the house where he lived away, and the earthquake came when that was gone and swallowed the land that the house was on; then the tax collector came around and charged him up with the hole in the ground.—Upson Parrot.

A Cure for Nerves.
The "nervy" girl will find that an hour's sewing is a wonderful nerve soother. She can sew in all her little irritations, her fancied injuries and generally become her normal self again when she has finished a long seam. One of the most neurotic and excitable women, the famous George Sand, wrote in praise of the soothing powers of needlework, and every girl who tries this simple remedy for nerves will doubtless confirm her testimony.—Home Notes.

Forty Years Ago

Janesville Daily Gazette, May 2, 1870.—Jottings.—On Tuesday last a man from the town of Union in this county brought to this city the skins of nine wolves, and claimed the bounty offered by the State and county, which is $2 from the former and $5 from the latter, making a nice little aggregate for the sportsman of $99. Another man brought in from the town of Magnolia today six skins of "ravening wolves," and of course got his $66.

A band of gypsies is encamped in the timber a short distance up the river. They are a class of people who have a very "taking" way with them.

Mayor Dow has done a most sensible thing in directing the officers to see that all obstructions are removed from the streets of the city.

Mr. Joseph Spaulding has moved his old homestead to the rear end of his lot, and has commenced the erection of a handsome dwelling.

Mr. J. W. Storey and family have left for Chicago where they will in the future take up their residence.

We are sorry to have them go. A school teacher was secured in a most novel manner in one of the school districts of an adjoining town. It appears that the three school directors met for the purpose of hiring a teacher, and several applicants were awaiting a reply from that august body. It further appears that two of said applicants were daughters of two of said directors, and the question of which applicant should be the school—both being duly competent—was a hard question to decide. Finally, after a deal of discussion from the directors it was agreed to leave the matter to the third, a d interested director, who, by the way, had kindly feelings toward both said directors' daughters, and a question left to his decision was whether he would select the daughter of the one or the other. He soon settled the matter by arranging two pieces of paper, and presented them to the said director, saying: "Now pull. The one that gets the longest, his daughter shall be the school." Mr. D. was the lucky man, Mr. O. declaring it all right, and Mr. B. was declared an adept to the knotty points in law.

DAILY DIET HINTS
By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist.
"THE STAFF OF LIFE."
Entire wheat or combination cereal bread and butter constitute a complete diet, on which sustained mental or physical work can be done, although the vegetarian should freely admit that flesh is a stimulant, that it yields a supply of albumen more quickly than bread and that, therefore, the most strenuous work may be more easily done, for a short time, on animal food, just as more intense work may be done for a short time on alcohol.
Vegetable oil, olive or peanut, is, however, more easily assimilated than animal fat, even butter. Nuts are in some respects preferable to cereals, because cereal starch is digested with difficulty, being often the direct cause of bowel trouble and also because nuts contain abundant fat. But as a source of bulk, necessary for bowel movement, and for steady supply of albumen and all other elements of nutrition except fat, coarse bread is a valuable food and is rightly named "the staff of life." Fine white bread, is, however, despoiled of much of the valuable mineral elements of the wheat, and is more liable to form indigestible dough- pellets. Fresh bread is liable to mass, to ferment, and it does not allow of natural mastication.

Progress.
A discovery results in an art; an art produces a comfort; a comfort made cheaply accessible adds family to the population; and a family is a new creation of thinking, reasoning, inventing, and discovering beings. Thus, instead of arriving at the end, we are at the beginning of the series, and ready to start with recruited numbers on the great and beneficent career of useful knowledge.—Edward Everett.
Claims to Have Found Black Rose.
Has the long-sought flower been found at last? It is reported that Dennis Tapple, a hopeless cripple, of Savannah, who has eked out an existence by making key rings, has been in Washington seeking a patent for a black rose that he has grown as the result of 15 years' experiments. Tapple says he has been offered $100,000 for the secret on the day that it is protected by patent, but he is awaiting further bids.
Inertia of the Nerves.
The researches and experiments of a French scientist have led him to the conclusion that the cerebral nervous system is incapable of perceiving more than an average of 125 separate impressions per second. After each excitation of the nerves a period of inertia follows, lasting about one-tenth of a second, and during this period a new impression cannot be made. According to the investigations of this scientist a person cannot make more than ten, or at the most a dozen, separate voluntary movements of any kind in a second, although the muscles, independently of the will, are capable of making as many as 30 or 40.
Post Cards.
The invention of postal cards is attributed to a gentleman of Viterbo, Austria, and the first over used by the Austrian government in 1869. They were adopted in England and Switzerland in 1870, in the United States authorized them June, 1872, and the first cards issued under the act were sent out in 1873. The return postal card had been in use in a number of European countries before it came in use with the early English. We have heard—been vulgarized—the illustrated postal card within the last half dozen years or so.
His Idea.
Mamma—Did you water the rub plant?
Noble—Wot's de use? If it's rubber, it's water proof.
Sheep as Land Cleaners.
In discussing the value of sheep in a country place, their services as land cleaners should not be ignored. They like pasture grasses, but they seem to like weeds and bushes better for browse. They will eat up an old field in a year or so—that what was a tangle of slightly weeds and shrubs will appear a smooth-shaven lawn.—Angora simply wonders at this sort of thing, but the common, everyday sheep the ordinary breed will do this good work, if you confine her to a job and put in enough of her.—Country Life in America.
